'ROUND 'N' 'ROUND

The dumbest stunt of the year was pulled last week during a football game.

One of the half backs brought a can of shoe polish with him.

By rubbing the polish on their hands the backs can get a good grasp on the ball and it won't slip.

But one of the brightest players on the team had an even brighter idea. He took the ball and coated it with shoe polish.

As a result, the ball was as slippery as a cake of ice, and just as elusive.

As a result, the boys in the backfield had one beautiful time trying to keep a hold on the ball.

William Crangle, the semi-official chief for the Richmond police department will serve the refreshments for the policemen's ball, so we learn.

Bill, so they tell us, will don a white apron and cap and officiate at the hot dog stand.

By the way, have you ever seen Bill when he wasn't good humored?

If you have, let us know. Then we'll believe in miracles.

Once upon a time a doctor could tell you you had something with a long name and you believed him.

But today, one demands to know just what is the matter.

Often wondered what ever became of the old family physician, who drove through storms and zero weather in his open buggy to attend to Johnny's tummy ache.

The old family physician, red of face with bear like movements who knew every member of the family and knew their little troubles.

The old family doctor who ushered you into the world, took care of you in your childish diseases, was the first to congratulate you when he told you "It's a boy" and was the man who stood by your bedside through long bitter nights as he fought the grim death angel who hovered about the bed?

What has become of the family doctor whom you stalled off when the bill was due and who never complained?

Just what has become of him?

Nothing, they tell us. He is still with us.

But instead of his open buggy he has his closed Packard or his airplane.

And he knows your family through his filing system, only.

Yes, the old family doctor is a thing of the past. May he rest in peace.

Building Will Not Be Halted By Rain

Steel work on the Ford motor plant on the Richmond inner harbor will be started the first thing this morning, according to a report made yesterday at the local offices of the firm. The work was scheduled to start Monday but it was delayed. The Herick Iron and Steel company, of Oakland, the contractors for the work, have been moving in a number of carloads of structural steel for the job, it was reported.

With the erection of the first piece of steel today, it will mark the beginning of the actual construction work on the fall of the plant.

The pouring of concrete floors and brick work will follow. Rain will not hold up the work to a great extent at the plant, officials announced yesterday.

However there will be several minor jobs that will be effected by a heavy rain, it was said.

The graduating seniors of Richmond Union High school last night held their first social function of the term.

The affair was in the form of a picnic, and was held in the high school gymnasium and cafeteria. It was originally scheduled to be held at Alvarado Park, but inclement weather forced the seniors to stage their picnic indoors.

More than 50 members of the graduating class gathered at the high school last evening.

The festivities opened with games between the boys and girls in the girls' gymnasium. These contests were directed by Woodrow Shodgrass and Merle Baskett of the games committee.

The successful affair was held under the direction of Edward Harlow, chairman. The faculty advisers who assisted in the arrangements for the picnic were Miss Carroll Frederick, Miss Gertrude Weatherly, Mrs. Allen Bronson, and Miss E. Roberts.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 30.—UP—The marital troubles of R. H. Van Loan, short story and screen writer, and Mrs. Gertrude Van Loan started no later than the day after they were married. Mrs. Van Loan charged today in an answer and cross complaint to her husband's suit for divorce.

They reached their peak recently when she had the writer jailed on a complaint that he failed to support their 14-year old daughter.

The wife claimed that Van Loan made disparaging remarks about her within the first 24 hours of their marriage and had embarrassed her continually since then by announcing his engagement to other women while still married. Mrs. Van Loan said her husband had a flair for publicity and asked her to have their child born in an airplane high above New York, she charged.

Gambling War Seen In Double Murder

STOCKTON, Sept. 30.—A new theory in the mysterious killing of R. L. Morris, Stockton rent car driver and Sophie Stetz, 19, whose bodies were found yesterday. F. P. Bush, of Sacramento, who operates a rent car service told police that he knew Morris was about to be "bumped off" and was on the move to elude secret enemies.

Bush declared he saw Morris in Sacramento with a girl a week ago and that he told him he was afraid of being killed.

Bush could not identify the girl in Sacramento.

As a result of this information, police advanced the theory that Morris was entangled in a gamblers' war here and was slain by a rival faction.

It was said that he made a practice of transporting passengers between Stockton and a nearby gambling resort, which has been subject to numerous raids.

The most valuable clue was a blood-stained wrench found at the scene of the slaying.

Richmond Woman Missing 3 Weeks

Mrs. Annie Austin, 26, 121 south Forty-second street, is today the object of an extensive search by police, following a report by her husband, W. G. Austin, that she disappeared three weeks ago.

According to Austin's report to police, Mrs. Austin left home Sept.

6 in the morning. A letter was found in the house addressed to Austin, in which his wife said she was afraid of a nervous breakdown and had gone to visit relatives in San Jose and Los Angeles.

Discovery of the letter, quieted the fears of the husband, but after he had written to relatives in Los Angeles and San Jose, and nobody had seen Mrs. Austin he notified police.

OAKLANDER WILL FACE CHARGES

OAKLAND, Sept. 30.—Charged with accepting a $80 bribe from a bootlegger, Sergeant Frederick P. Tatum of the Oakland police force was arrested at his home here today and taken to the county jail for questioning.

Chief of Police James Drew and District Attorney Earl Warren de-Working on the alleged bootlegger Richard Smart, 1545 Stuart street, Berkeley, told them he had been driven to desperation by Sergeant Tatum demanding hush money.

Working on the alleged bootlegger's tip, Chief Drew gave Smart $30 in marked bills to pass to Sergeant Tatum.

Men Watched According to arresting officers, the transfer was made in front of the police officer's home shortly after midnight while three detectives from the district attorney's office watched from hiding.

Although the bills were said to have been found underneath his pillow, Sergeant Tatum denied all knowledge of the money.

Tatum was bound to the Northern Station under Capt. Thorvald Brown, against whom a Federal Grand jury indictment in the beer racket of last year was dismissed.

According to police reports, Tatum went off duty at midnight Monday, and while enroute home, met Sergeant A. J. Howe in front of a drug store at Fortieth street and Telegraph avenue.

Hold Meet

Tatum suggested a cup of coffee and when Howe agreed, said he would have a run home first to get an overcoat.

As they pulled up in front of Tatum's home at 803 Brockhurst avenue, an automobile was parked across the street.

"Pardon me a minute," Sergeant Tatum is alleged to have said, "I think there is a fellow I want to see."

Walking across the street Tatum engaged in conversation with the driver Smart, while Detectives Oscar Jahnsen, Harry Piper and Chas. Blagborne were looking on.

Money Found

Tatum returned in a few minutes and he and Howe went into the house. Detective Jahnsen said he saw the light flash on in Tatum's bedroom and then saw the sergeant place the money beneath his pillow.

The three men then waited for Tatum and Howe to come out, and after arresting Tatum, searched his room and recovered the money, police say.

Tatum denied all knowledge of the money and he and Howe were taken to the county jail. Howe was released as an innocent party at 4 a. m. after questioning.

ATHLETICS ARE FAVORED IN OPENER

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 30.—UP—A good American League team can lick a good National League team, to paraphrase the old axiom of fisticuffs, and such is the majority opinion on the eve of the 1930 world series.

The Philadelphia Athletics are favorites to retain the championship of the baseball world in the forthcoming series with the St. Louis Cardinals, but these plucky red birds from Missouri are expected to put up a better battle for the title than some of their immediate predecessors.

Thirty three thousand fans will look on in Shibe park tomorrow, under presumably sunny skies, when the Mackmen and Cards take the field for the opening game. The starting pitchers will be "Lefty" Grove for the American League champions and Durelign Grimes for the National League contenders.

The scrappy Cardinals, who came with a rush through September to snatch the pennant in a desperate finish in the senior circuit, are counting upon the momentum thus gained to carry them on the first victory the National League has enjoyed since St. Louis won the world's championship from the New York Yankees in 1928.

The Athletics are favored to win both the opening game and the series. The odds in each case being 10 to 7. These odds are based upon an appreciation of American League supremacy on the pitching power of Grove and the other Philadelphia hurlers, on the batting punch of the Big Three, Cochrane, Simmons and Fox, and on managerial strategy in which Connie Mack is conceded the palm over Gabby Street, who is in his first year as a big league pilot.

FISH INDUSTRY IN CANADA LARGE

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 30.—With fish caught by the fisheries along the Canadian Atlantic coast bringing a market return of $21,691,013 last year, the waters lapping the Dominion provinces of New Brunswick, Quebec, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island is one of the wealthiest seas in the world.

The fisheries in these four provinces account for nearly 40 percent of the total fish production of Canada, a nation whose fisheries are among the most productive of any country in the world, according to a bulletin issued here by the Department of Immigration and Colonization of the Canadian Pacific railway.

"Canada's Atlantic coast provinces had an increase of almost four percent in the market value of the fish caught last year over the 1928 yields," says the bulletin. "The market value of the fish caught in this area in 1928 amounted to $20,855,613."

"The fish taken in the Atlantic coast provinces come, for the most part, from the sea, but Quebec and New Brunswick have small inland fisheries on a commercial scale."

"The most notable advances in the market value of fish taken along the Atlantic coast last year occurred in the provinces of New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island. In the former, the value of production rose from $5,001,641 in 1928 to $5,935,695 last year and in the latter province, the increase was from $1,195,577 to $1,366,428."

"Nova Scotia is the great cod-fish producing province. Last year the value of its product in codfish alone amounted to $3,504,583. The lobster fishery is second in importance in this province. The sardine fishery takes first rank in New Brunswick, and the lobster fishery takes first place in Prince Edward Island."

Night Grid Games At High Seen

The prospects of night football games at Richmond Union High school was suggested to the students of the local high school by Principal B. X. Tucker yesterday in assembly.

Tucker pointed out that night games would enable many alumni who are employed during the day-time to attend contests in which their former school is battling.

However, Tucker stated that there were many problems connected with the plan and that these would have to be thrashed out in detail by students and faculty members. He also pointed out as one of the drawbacks to the night games the lack of enthusiasm over the plan on the part of other high schools of the eastbay.

The plan, if adopted here, would probably go into effect next autumn. Tucker said that the installation of a lighting system on the field would probably cost at least $1000. He stated that he believed the gate receipts from night games would more than make up for the cost of the plan.

The plan presents large possibilities, as well as a number of problems. Night games have become firmly established in professional baseball and football competition, and there seems to be no reason why night games should not also be successful in high school sports. The main advantage of night contests is the fact that it lends an opportunity to fans occupied during the day to witness their favorite sport during their leisure at night time.

BIRD REFUGES PLANNED BY U. S.

The new migratory bird refuges that are being established by the federal government are to consist for the most part of bodies of water and their immediate borders, suitable for the various game species, and will include a minimum of ordinary upland types of country. This statement is made by officials of the Biological Survey, of the United States Department of Agriculture, which will administer the new refuges to give support and further effect to the migratory bird treaty between the United States and Great Britain—acting for Canada. The five families of game birds protected by the treaty are defined as waterfowl, cranes, rails, shorebirds, and wild pigeons.

The migratory bird conservation act passed by congress in 1929 is designed to protect migratory game birds through the establishment of refuges for them. These game species are for the most part inhabitants of bays and shores, lakes and marshes. In spite of this, many recommendations of upland localities have been made to the Biological Survey by landowners and others as suitable for examination and purchase for refuge sites.

The Biological Survey states emphatically that such tracts can not be purchased. With reference to the areas that are desired, in water, marsh, or in some cases swamp, the bureau explains that so far as practicable preference will be given to tracts of 20,000 acres or more in extent; though especially desirable smaller tracts will be considered.

Other things being equal lands obtainable at the lowest prices will be given primary consideration. The purchase program will extend over a period of ten years and it must not be expected that a large number of refuges can be established immediately. The areas to be obtained under the Migratory Bird Conservation Act are for inviolate sanctuaries, and no lands are being acquired for public shooting grounds.

The five families of game birds for which the refuges are being established, as well as the following groups, are almost wholly marsh and aquatic species. They comprise the Anatidae, or waterfowl, including brant, wild ducks, geese, and swans; the Gruidae, or cranes, including little brown, sandhill and whooping cranes; the Rallidae, or rails, including coots, gallinules and sora and other rails; the Limicolae, or shorebirds, including avocets, curlews, dowitchers, godwits, knots, oyster catchers phalaropes, plovers, sandpipers, snipes, stilts, surf-birds, turnstones, willets, woodcock and yellowlegs and the Columbidae, or pigeons including doves and wild pigeons.

DUCK SEASON OPENS TODAY

Duck season opened throughout the state this morning, and numerous hundreds of Richmond are in the northern rice fields blazing away at the feathered fowls.

Considerable confusion has arisen over the limit of ducks this year because of the variance between the federal law, which allows a bag of 15 per day and the state law, which permits 25. The majority of hunters have declared they will not brook any chances of arrest by shooting more than 15, and will comply with the federal statute.

HIGH GRIDDERS WILL MEET FROSH

The Richmond Union High school gridders will have their opponents Saturday morning the second and third strings of the University of California Frosh.

The game is scheduled to be held at the University of California. The two squads will go into action at 10:30 o'clock.

The game has excited much interest among local followers of the pigskin. The result of the local gridders' first clash with college athletes should be interesting. Richmond, although rather unfortunate this season, measures well up to the standard of regular high school teams, and contains much promising material. Whether the local warriors can withstand the experience of college gridders will be proven in Saturday morning's game at Berkeley.

DEMOLAY CAGE TEAM WINS GAME

The Richmond Demolay cagers last night opened their 1930 season by trouncing the University De Molays of Berkeley by a score of 33 to 12 in the Richmond Union High school gymnasium.

The Richmond athletes showed a flash and brand of speed unusual in a team playing its first game of the year. The locals completely outplayed the visitors by their fast passwork, and kept on top of the pile during a most the entire contest.

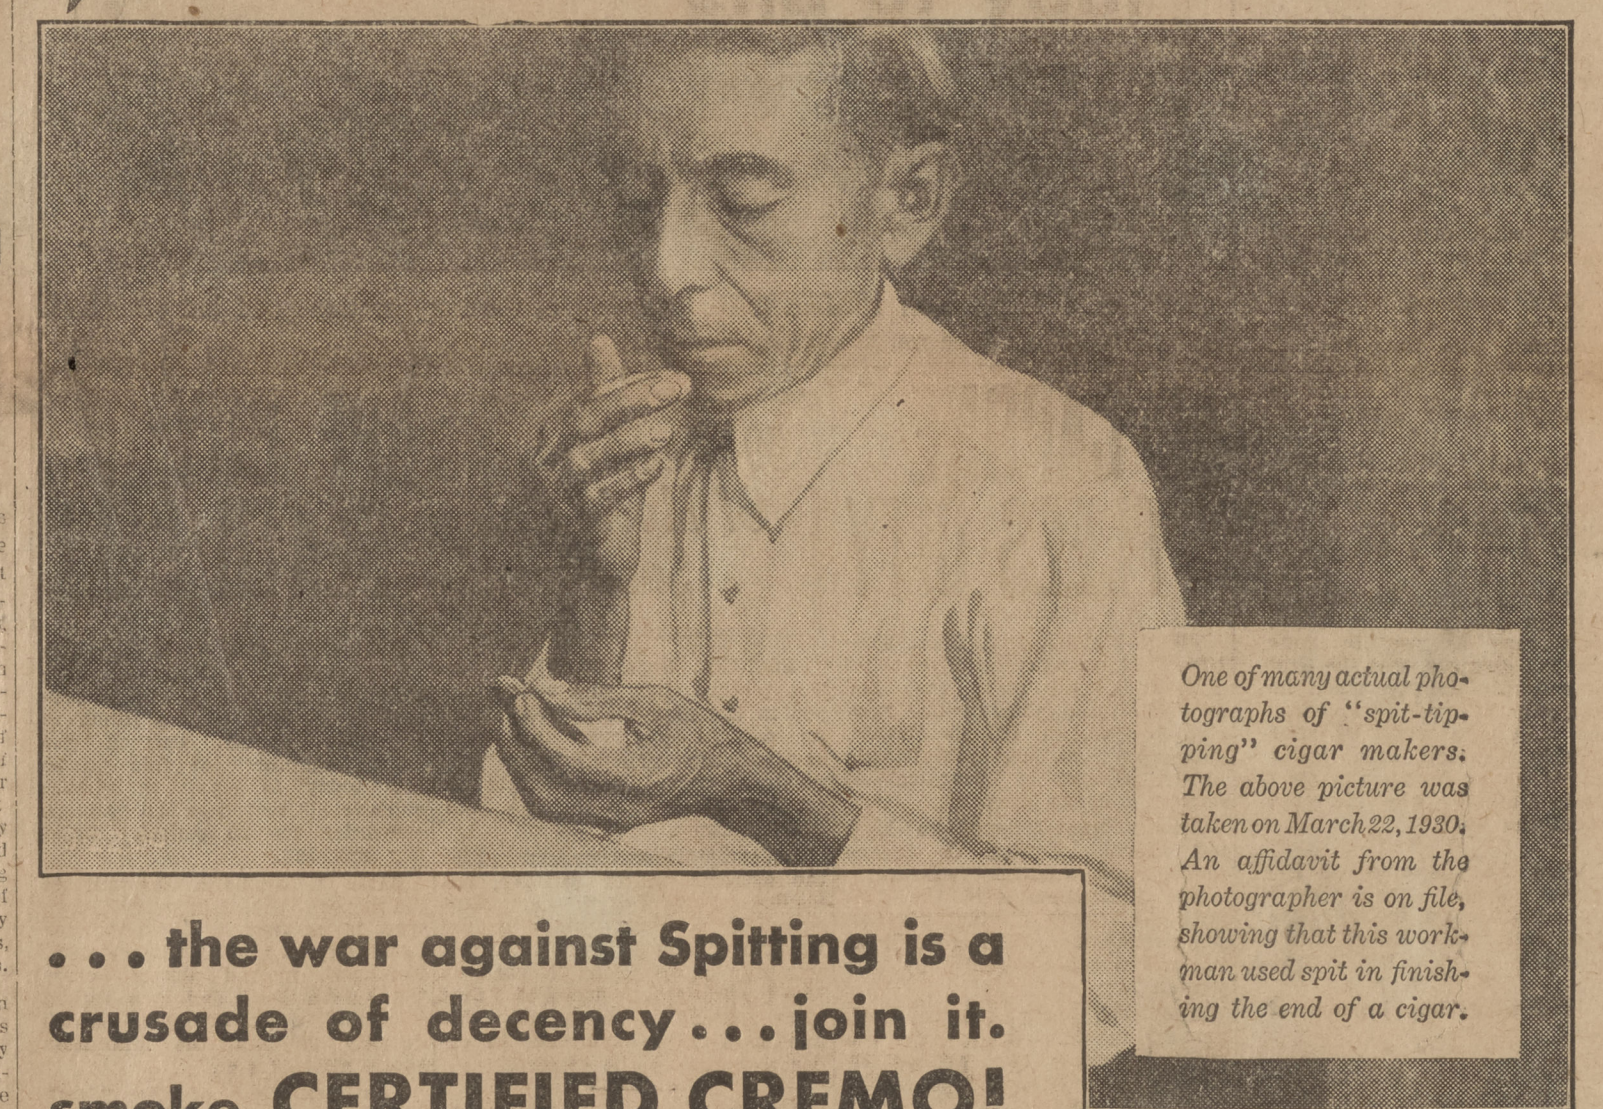

Hall and McIn, forwards, and Thompson, center, were the high point men for Richmond, each netting a total of eight points. Arnold did the bucket-shooting act for Berkeley, marking up a six point total.

The complete lineup for Richmond was as follows: Johnson, Hall, forwards; Thompson, center; Draxel, Sanfilippo guards; substitutes—Jewell, McIn, forwards; McKane, McLean, centers; Homer, Transue and Nicollayson.

The visiting squad included: Arnold, Larsen, forwards; Davis, center; Nello, Bowers, guards.

The Richmond Demolays will play their next game Tuesday evening against the Piedmont Demolay five. The game will be played at 9 o'clock in the Oakland High school gymnasium.

William Bolger, C. S. T., vice president of the College of St. Thomas, St. Paul, Minn.

"When members of the medical profession, leading lawyers, judges and statesmen, social workers, authors and Protestant ministers advocate birth control," said Rev. Doctor Scores Gin Bottle, Cream Jar

NORWALK Conn.—Women who substitute the cold cream jar and bottle of gin for the use of water externally and internally were roundly scored by J. Quinn, at a recent meeting of physicians, dermatologists and cosmeticians at Pinaud laboratories here.

The chief vice of the modern American woman is that she has gotten so far away from the simple primary things that she is neglecting to realize their necessity, he said.

"The old-fashioned family sink is still an unbeatable institution," Quinn declared. "Some women seem to have forgotten that the use of water is the basis of health. When they need cleansing they rush to their cold creams and when they need a drink they go to a bottle of gin."

Quinn explained that he has nothing against cold cream. In fact, he's for it, provided it is used with water and not instead of it. He enumerated six practices which he said the American woman pursues against beauty and health: first, insufficient use of water; second, gullibility in submitting to fake beauticians; third, too much questionable liquor; fourth, poorly regulated diet; fifth, too many worries and sixth, trying to live too quickly.

OIL SHALE BEDS DISCUSSION HELD

DENVER, Colo., Sept. 30.—UP—Opinions of experts differ tonight as to whether Colorado's oil shale beds can be worked profitably at this time and as to the potential value of the deposits.

The oil shale lands became an issue in affairs of the interior department this week when Ralph S. Kelley, in resigning as chief of the field division of the General land office, charged that big oil companies were grabbing up the holdings.

Most of the oil experts here expressed the belief that the refining of oil shale is not practicable at the present time with more than a sufficiency of the fuel being produced from existing wells.

Robert D. Hawley, general attorney for the Continental Oil company, in commenting on the charges made by Kelley, said:

"The large oil companies interested themselves in the Colorado oil shale beds only after pressure of Colorado citizens to get them to enter the territory."

Under present conditions, Hawley declared, it would be necessary to operate a 10,000 to 20,000 ton per day basis in order to make it a profitable business later.

Delos D. Potter, attorney for oil shale interests, feels that although it is as yet impossible to extract oil from the shale in a paying manner that the time will come when it will be one of the chief industries of Colorado.

It is estimated that the oil shale beds of Colorado comprise over 1,000,000 acres of land and that oil obtained in the beds has a potential value of $40,000,000.

According to figures supplied in the office of the state oil inspector, the shale contains 8,000,000,000 barrels of recoverable oil.

Byrd To Be Speaker At Meet Today

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 30.—UP—Rear-Admiral Richard E. Byrd, first man to reach the South Pole by airplane, will keep an engagement made by radio across 10,000 miles of space when he appears at the National Safety Council here tomorrow.

The invitation to appear at the conference, which will be Byrd's first platform appearance since his return from the Antarctic, was made by a code message several months ago while the explorer still was in the Polar regions.

Byrd answered at once that he would be glad to come if his itinerary made it possible. When Byrd reached the Panama Canal he was met by a member of the manufacturers' committee of the safety congress and a contract for the speaking engagement signed.

Byrd's appearance here will precede his proposed lecture tour. It will be marked by first showing of his own pictures of the history making expedition which differ from those already released.

The famous flier, who conquered both Poles by air, will tell of many problems relating to safety which he encountered on his expedition. From the standpoint of safety the party made a wonderful record. Not a man was lost in the two years spent in the terrible cold and hazards of the south polar region.

The convention is expected to bring 10,000 persons to Pittsburgh including leading industrialists, scientists and public officials. Every phase of the safety movement will be discussed in hundreds of talks or portrayed by elaborate exhibits.

DEATH CLAIMS BIRKENHEAD EARL

LONDON, Sept. 30.—UP—Death came peacefully to the Earl of Birkenhead today, and silenced the "sibilant, searing tongue" of the former secretary of state of India, a man almost universally regarded as one of Britain's most brilliant statesmen of this or any time.

He had been ill for months with lung trouble. Congestion and a rising fever suddenly became acute Monday. Lord Birkenhead, fighting for life had rallied from previous dangerous ebbs.

He was a comparatively young man but at 58 had not the vitality to rise again against the malady which sapped his energies and killed him.

Leaves Widow
Lady Birkenhead, a son and two daughters survive. The son, Viscount Furneaux, is the heir to his title, and becomes the second earl.

Lord Birkenhead was a picturesque character, beloved by man, hated by some, but respected by all who knew him, or of him. Even in his days at Oxford, when, as Frederick Edwin Smith, he was among the unknown youths of his generation, the man who subsequently became lord high chancellor gave evidences of the incisive mind and analytical ability which made him great.

Was Lazy
As a youth, he admitted he was inclined to be lazy until one day his father, after discussing the great men of the nation, said: "And there is no reason in the world why you should not be lord chancellor."

Lord Birkenhead, then "Freddie" Smith, as he was known, pondered that for a moment and then, agreeing his father was right, made the words his goal. He won a scholarship and while preparing for the bar became interested in the life of Disraeli. He determined to reproduce in his own life the career of the famous prime minister.

Became Lord
He failed in that, because by accepting the lord chancellorship under the Baldwin ministry in 1919 he became a lord and thereby deliberately barred himself from becoming premier. British premiers of the present day are almost necessarily commoners, so they can defend their policies in the house of commons.

But in point of brilliance and, to an extent, in achievement, Lord Birkenhead's admirers believed he ranked with or above Disraeli.

Lord Birkenhead gained almost as much fame by his writing as he did by his statesmanship and legal ability. He was a frequent contributor to newspapers and magazines, here and in the United States, and his outspoken views gained him a great following.

Hawks Sets New Air Speed Mark

VALLEY STREAM, L. I., Sept. 30.—UP—Frank Hawks, famous trans-America flier, landed his plane here at 1:27 p. m. today, two hours and 41 minutes after he had taken off from Detroit. His course through the air was more than 500 miles long. His average speed for the entire trip was 245 miles per hour. He added that he flew at a 10,000 foot altitude and was aided by a tail wind.

MRS. HOOVER AT GIRL SCOUT MEETING

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 30.—UP—With the opening of the world series in Philadelphia and the 16th annual convention of the Girl Scouts of America to choose from Mrs. Herbert Hoover came to Indianapolis to be with the Girl Scouts.

"I've been a Girl Scout all my life," she said, in explaining to the United Press tonight why she chose to attend the convention here rather than the first world series game with the pre-ident at Philadelphia tomorrow.

"Although I did my scouting alone when I was a girl," she said, "The aims and ideals of Girl Scouts are those which always have appealed to me. I feel that I have been one of them all my life."

Mrs. Hoover, who is honorary national president of the Girl Scouts, wore their simple gray-green uniform during the interview.

She became actively engaged in the organization work of the Girl Scouts shortly before the outbreak of the World War, she said. Since then she has led two Girl Scout troops, one at her home at Stan-

Apple Barrels Contain Beer

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 30.—UP—Innocent appearing barrels labelled apples and varnish yielded 16,000 pints of imported Canadian beer today when police moved to block what they claimed was an attempt of Chicago beer barons to establish themselves in Los Angeles.

Ten thousand bottles of the beer were seized in the warehouse of the American Storage company and six thousand more in the storage plant of the Jennings-Nibley company. It was not believed either company was implicated.

The beer arrived here last week from Toronto, via Chicago, for establishment of a clientele.

NEW LOWS ON N. Y. STOCK MART

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—UP—Failure of the stock exchange house of J. A. Sisto and company, announced from the rostrum of the exchange today, brought chaos into the market and proved the undoing of the bullish element which had succeeded in stemming bear assaults in the earlier trading.

The Dow Jones & company averages broke to new lows for the year with the railroad figure making a new low since 1927. The industrial average closed at 204.90 off 3.24. Railroad 121.67 off 0.33 and Utility 75.91 off 1.24.

In the course of the selling more than 300 issues broke below the lows of last October-November drives, and of this number 200 issues were at new lows for all time.

See for Yourself

Visit the inner harbor and see the development that is now under way there.

It's a sight to gladden the hearts of Richmondites to view the progress being made on the Ford assembly plant.

It was a fine tribute to the industrial advantages of this city when the Ford company selected Richmond as the site of its new western plant. It is a pleasure to see with what speed and enthusiasm the contractors and the company are entering into the actual work of building the great factory.

In a few days the steel work will begin to rise and the outlines of the building will start to take shape. Contract for the face brick has been awarded to a local company. Most of the piles have been driven and this feature of the construction will be out of the way before the bad weather starts.

The work is going forward on schedule, and there is every reason to believe that the plant will be producing Ford cars by next June or July.

Richmond people should visit the inner harbor zone and see for themselves what has been done and is being done there. It is only fair to say again that these developments are due to the city of Richmond, the Chamber of Commerce and the many groups of our citizens who have cooperated to make progress possible.

Support your Chamber of Commerce and expect greater things in the future.

HOW TO HOLD A WIFE

ONE reason why women get tremendously weary of matrimonial duties is because it seems to be forever aimed at girls and wives—never at young men and husbands, who need it at least as much as the opposite sex. Your average clergyman, or psychologist, or visiting English novelist, apparently is convinced that a husband (like Beauty) is his own excuse for being; that he need do nothing to keep the love of the woman who, presumably, spends her days trying to hold his fickle affections.

It just isn't so, in the case of many a modern American marriage. The feminine partner in such a marriage is no Patient Griselda. She doesn't have to put up with everything, what's more, she won't. The mere statistical fact that two-thirds of the divorces in the United States are obtained by women would seem to indicate that the American husband is decidedly in need of some tips on how to hold his wife's interest and affection.

Therefore, we congratulate a wise and courageous man, Dr. Arthur Frank Payne, psychologist, who broadcast five such useful tips to his sex the other day. One of our clever contributors, Nina Dumas, was listening in, and has relayed to THE WOMAN OF IT a résumé of Dr. Payne's prescription.

THE Five Things That a Man Must Give to His Wife to Hold Her Happily are listed by Dr. Payne as follows:

(1) He must fulfill her ideal of strength or virility, since woman—swayed by the command of the greatest mother of them all, Nature—instinctively seeks strength and fitness in her mate, as a means of improving the species. "Don't let her see your weakness," Dr. Payne urges husbands.

This last admonition seems to us a somewhat impossible counsel of perfection—men being what they are! As an ideal, nevertheless, we highly approve of it. We get so tired of all this limp logic about women loving a man out of pity. Personally, we must primarily admire, not pity, the man or woman whom we love.

(2) He must give her economic security—must, says Dr. Payne, maintain a home in the way she thinks it should be maintained, so that she may brag about her man to other women.

Many wives, we know, do make this demand of their husbands—unless they are the few fifty-five wives, capable of providing for their own economic security. Even these demand in a husband economic self-respect—the ability and the willingness to work.

(3) He must give her social security. She has to be proud, argues the psychologist, of her man and his position in the world—of making his membership in this or that exclusive club. Another way in which he can and must give her social security is by being solicitous about little courtesies, all the little things that he was careful to do and say before he married her.

It seems to us that a woman isn't going to worry about her husband's social position unless she worries about her own. We can imagine being married perfectly happily without even thinking about "social security" in this sense.

However, we agree violently with the psychologist that the lack of one of the most indispensable characteristics in the husband who wants to keep his wife's love, H. L. Mencken remarked the other day that the first law of happy marriage, as of every other relationship, is "Be polite."

(4) He must give her love security. As we understand it, Dr. Payne means by this phrase what the lyrical description of the Douglas meant—"Douglas, Douglas, tender and true." We believe that the woman who marries for love wants her husband to love her tenderly and forever, and that his deterioration from such love into mere habit is perhaps the commonest reason for the unhappy ending of the marriage.

(5) The man must be able to give his wife motherhood. Many—though not all—wives would find their happiness incomplete could they not be mothers. In any event, a husband's complete normality as a man would seem to be the indispensable co-efficient of happy married life.

ON THE whole, Dr. Payne's Five Musts for husbands seem to us excellent. We would add five more—Intelligence, Tolerance, Self-control, Justice, Humor. While Dr. Payne and we are laying down the law, it's as well to leave nothing out. Anyhow, the American husband now is given a goal toward which he may aspire, as well as a warning that it takes two to make a happy marriage and that if he is not the only person who must work to hold what she has.

P. S. No, we are NOT going to write a column about how to Hold a Husband. That, as we pointed out in the beginning, is the side of the question which has been discussed to death!

In the home where there are no children it may be possible to get along with a frugal preserve cupboard stocked from a nearby store, but where there are children there is sure to be clamor for jams and jellies and marmalades.

And the delicacies children like best are frequently the ones that are rarely to be found in the stores. No canning company, for instance, has ever approximated the delicious rich flavor of New England plum jam. Of course the very first requisite for this dainty is that you should have a plum tree right out in your yard so you can make it from fresh picked fruit, but few of us have such trees. So we shall do the best we can with the plums in the market, and I can assure you that will be quite good enough for most people. This New England plum butter can be made from any variety of plums, but the small red ones are best for the purpose.

NEW ENGLAND PLUM JAM
6 cups pitted plums, tightly packed.
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 cup light brown sugar
2 tablespoons cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon cloves
1 teaspoon nutmeg

Mix ingredients and allow to stand for about an hour, or until juice runs freely. Bring to a boil, then lower heat and simmer for about 45 minutes or until the preserve is very thick.

Preserving the View From the Broad Window

By Alma Zeiss

AT THE BROAD, SUNLIT WINDOW VENETIAN BLINDS PROVIDE SPLENDID PROTECTION AND ARE VERY DECORATIVE.

Dear Miss Zeiss:

We are moving to a new apartment where the living room windows are in one long string across the side of the room. They look down on a quite pretty little square or park and I am anxious to drop them as attractive as possible without shutting out any of the light or view. Will you tell me how to get the best effect? There couldn't be shades, could there, on a big expanse of windows like that? Then that would mean draw curtains, wouldn't it? Or what other kind of treatment could I have? The sun comes in quite strong for part of the day.

I would also like you to give me a good arrangement for this room. I have to use an old sofa set, including two stuffed chairs; also an upright piano and music cabinet, two end tables and a scoop chair. I guess you call it. It is a chair with a rounded seat and wooden arms. What kind and color of draperies would be nice with beige and ivory walls and a purplish plain carpet? The upholstery of the set is green damask in fairly good condition; scoop chair has a striped seat in gold and red and pale green. Thank you very much for your help on this problem. (Mrs.) G. P.

Treatments That Trim Without Covering the Window

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1929

TO a decorative feature so rare as a big broad window looking down upon a pretty park we must indeed give serious thought, and Mrs. P. is wise in her determination to consider it carefully before rushing into plans for the entire room.

Nevertheless, a good arrangement of the furniture which must be used will give direction to the general scheme and may well come first.

The diagram shows a treatment that will center interest round the window wall and give a good distribution of upholstered and wooden pieces. We should have preferred the less conspicuous sofa-wall as a location for the piano, but in this position all the woods would have been brought to one-half of the room, and all the upholstered pieces to the other, leaving one section cold and hard looking and the other too overstuffed. Therefore the sofa is the better place for the entrance wall.

To the furniture noted by Mrs. P. the plan of rearrangement adds a flat topped desk and chair, another side chair and a screen. If she does not wish to buy the desk at present she may use the radio in its place, with a small bench or stool before it. Then the music cabinet may be moved to the other side of the piano.

In making recommendations for the window wall, nothing would add more dignity and charm and color than built-in bookshelves for the space found color of a good hand-blocked, then having a floral design which covers glowing colors such as gold, turquoise, coral, red and rich green. This would make a charming background for the two plain green chairs used at either side of the window.

Instead of having glass curtains which, however thin, obscure the view, it might be very effective and convenient to use Venetian blinds in the manner shown in the illustration. These slatted shades which cast interesting lights and shadows on floor, walls and furniture are also decorative in a plain, unpretentious way. They also give the room a nice privacy and protection without completely shutting out air or light. For this room they could be painted a soft sage or light shade harmonizing with the beige and ivory walls; or, if desired, they might repeat the gold on the turnstile note found in the curtains. If one is unskilled in color blending, however, it would be safer to use the beige tones.

If Mrs. P. does not care for the blinds, she could use lightweight pongee curtains mounted on a traverse cord and draw them to the extreme sides and the center of the window where they would hang in narrow folded sections until wanted across the windows at night or to soften the bright sunlight. When there are no shades the side curtains should also be full enough to draw entirely across the window. It occurs to us that Mrs. P. has not stated whether her windows are of the casement or the regulation type. If they are casements opening outward, then the Venetian blinds could still be used, but if they open inward, it will be necessary to use the curtains on the traverse cord.

For the window seat cushion, dull gold or sage green would be a good color, and a leather-like material would make a good cover, and there might also be a few loose pillows in the plain colors found in the curtain design. To break up the set effect and also to bring pattern and interest to the entrance wall, we would make a slipcover of the figured linen for the low table and repeat the sage and gold notes in plain cushions. Over the sofa a rather large picture, having turquoise and gold in the composition, would give emphasis to these colors in the couch cover. The scoop chair will probably hang quite well with the other colors. The seat of "CHINESE eat rats," the child told little Susan, and from that day on she could hardly bear to look at a Chinaman. Although Susan is a grown woman now, and knows better, she still has to grapple with a prejudice against the Chinese.

Prejudice

Most of our prejudices started in some such foolish way. Perhaps another prejudice at work here is the idea that all the Irish were dirty. Or, maybe, on the day the Italian vegetable man forgot to deliver the order, she said, "What can you expect of those people?" Father may have made fun of a name that sounded odd to him, or spoken of an individual as a "kike," a "nigger" or a "ragger." Sometimes it needs just a shrug of the shoulder or a lift of the eyelash or a slight shrinking to implant the wicked seed of a prejudice. If we don't want to keep the ball of prejudice rolling on indefinitely we must be very careful of our own speech and action in front of our children. Let us try very hard to teach them not to look upon any "foreigners" as inferiors. We have to constantly keep our mind and sympathy to the better one that there are all kinds of people in every group, even in our own.

Little children are naturally very democratic. They should have an opportunity while they are small of mingling with many different races and kinds of people. If one has learned in childhood to love and admire a little Japanese girl or a Negro boy, one is not likely to have prejudices against whole races when one grows up. Likewise, young children should be told and read stories of other lands and races so as to gain an understanding and appreciation of customs and manners different from their own.

Let us strive to overcome our own prejudices and accept individuals on their merits irrespective of the nationality, class, religion or political party to which they belong. If we cannot quite reach this high goal, let us at least protect our children from ingrained prejudices by watching our speech, acts and gestures. Teaching young folks to respect and appreciate other people and races is the finest kind of "peace work."

THINK IT OVER

By Alfalfa Smith

IN the olden days of the saloon I used to imagine that whenever a man took a drink at the bar of a saloon it connected him with every drunken bum in the world.

Today I imagine that those who drink are held between the terrific fire which is going on between prohibition and anti-prohibition. At least those who get drunk these days do some very, very funny things which I never saw done in the days of the saloon.

There is not an argument for or against anything, but I am telling you we are living in a mental world, so watch your step.

THE NEW FOOTBALL RULES

THE gridiron season is with us again. The Football Rules Committee, after a nice dinner, cigars, cracked ice and ginger ale, made some changes in the 1930 rules for both spectators and players. The following changes are announced:

1. The open season on raccoon coats is from Sept. 25 to Dec. 1, but installment collectors may trap them after that.
2. Tickets purchased of speculators will positively be honored at the gate. A pair on the 50-yard line, for which you paid $125, will not only be honored, but given the Croix de Guerre.
3. Wednesday will be pay day for college players. They will get Sunday afternoons off.
4. The most successful padding recommended for the rigors of football consists of a silver flask on each hip and a thermos bottle slung over the shoulder.
5. A magnifying glass may be used for tracking Albie Booth.
6. SIGNALS. (a) When the referee wiggles one finger toward the side lines, it means rush in a pair of wooden spittles. (b) Wiggling two fingers means to bring on a pair of crutches. (c) Wiggling one finger of the right hand and one finger of the left means bring on a stretcher. (d) Waving both hands in the air by the referee signifies summon an ambulance. (e) When the referee shakes his head negatively from side to side, it signifies no bones were broken that time, but wait till the next play.
7. For the convenience of scalpers selling tickets to the public, each lateral strip will be known as the 50-yard line, while seats in back of the goal posts will be euphemistically referred to as mid-field.
8. A no shift of any kind will be permitted without thirty days' notice to the Anti-Saloon League.
9. On account of the new 50,000 capacity stadium that has been built at South Bend, the Notre Dame football team will only travel from Philadelphia to Los Angeles this season. For Notre Dame this practically amounts to playing a full schedule of home games.
10. The megaphone used by cheer leaders will be the same as in former seasons, but an ether cone is strongly recommended as a substitute.
11. A long, regular cheer shall be given for each player who breaks his neck. Shorter cheers may be given for contusions and minor fractures.
12. Clipping is absolutely forbidden except for barbers' colleges.
13. PENALTIES—(a) For letting an opponent twist your knee, ten yards of adhesive tape. (b) For letting an opponent sock you in the nose, loss of three pints of blood. (c) For letting an opponent use both your eyes, loss of sight at least three weeks. (d) For letting an opponent bite you in the stomach with his heels, loss of wind on the spot where the incident occurred.

14. When the referee blows his whistle it means all north and south boundaries must stop.

15. The umpire shall use a horn to indicate a halt in play, but if he hanks this horn excessively he is liable to get a ticket.

16. The field judge shall shoot a blank cartridge from a revolver to indicate time is up. When the gun is loaded he may act as a bodyguard to the stadium in a motor car.

THIS AND THAT
That scientist failed in his attempt to create a shower over Belmont Park. They had to call it off on account of perfect weather.

In South America, a coupe d'etat is when they put the President in the rumble seat.

If Philo Vance was working on that Crater mystery, he'd probably find the judge disappeared through a secret panel of the grand jury.

Eggs are down to 28 cents a dozen, which may explain why the managers are putting on fewer plays.

America cannot only beat England at polo, but our Boards of Aldermen are better at banging mallets than theirs are, too.

The tourists from Europe are coming back to the land where the dollar is worth only 61 cents.

Why are those Brooklyn fans kicking against moving the world series games to the Polo Grounds? Doesn't Notre Dame play its home football games in Chicago?

SCHOOL nurse says all girls should know this
TALKING to a roomful of high school girls on personal hygiene, experienced district nurse said: "One of the basic rules of health for girls is to keep the system functioning naturally at all times. Normal exercise and diet habits should be encouraged. But when necessary there's no harm in taking nujol, since it works mechanically and can't disturb the normal functions of any organ of the body. Particularly with girls, there are times when nujol should always be taken. Take a spoonful every night for a few days. It's a thoroughly safe and harmless method. It won't cause distress or gas pains or griping."
Nujol is different from any other substance. It contains no drugs or medicine. It can be taken safely no matter how you are feeling because it is so pure and harmless. It works so easily. Every woman should keep a bottle on hand. Every druggist has this remarkable substance. Get the genuine.

250 MEMBERS OF LEGION AT MEET

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 30.—California World War veterans, two hundred and fifty strong, accompanied by a huge live California bear, are enroute eastward for the national convention of the American Legion to be held at Boston, October 6-9. The convention, according to State Commander B. W. Gearhart of Fresno, will be the largest ever held by the World War veterans' organization.

Northern California delegates to the big convention will enroute from San Francisco Monday night for Los Angeles where they will be met by the southern California contingent and together the two units will proceed on Tuesday to Boston via the southern route stopping at El Paso, New Orleans and other places prior to a one-day visit to President Hoover at the White House. State Commander Gearhart and State Adjutant J. K. Fisk are in charge of the arrangements for the journey to the convention. Preceding the California delegation, Adjutant General Mittelstedt of the California National Guard and Colonel Otto Sandman Stockton, are flying to Boston to participate in the National Guard convention to be held prior to the American Legion meeting. The two men will later take part in the big air parade which will be staged simultaneously with the parade of the Legionnaires at Boston.

The California delegates will be attired in a natty uniform of white, orange and blue combinations. A carload of oranges and grapes for distribution at Boston will be taken along by the delegates. In addition to the delegates to the American Legion auxiliary, the Party and Eight Society and the Eight and Party Society will make the journey to Boston.

Special boxes of California grapes are being taken along for presentation to President Hoover, former President Calvin Coolidge, National Commander O. L. Bodenhamer, National Adjutant James F. Barton and the French and English ambassadors, all of whom will be in attendance at the convention. Three American Legion posts, San Diego, San Mateo and Vacaville will be represented in the American Legion parade by specially designed floats of monster proportions, depicting California scenes.

Bands and drum corps will accompany the delegation from this state. Following the convention, the Californians will be the guests of the several Massachusetts clubs.

A notable program will feature the sessions of the convention which will be the work of the American Legion for the coming year. President Hoover, Calvin Coolidge and a long list of distinguished Americans will address the Legionnaires.

The California state department of the American Legion will be represented by Commander Gearhart, Adjutant Fisk, F. N. Belgrano Jr., San Francisco; Clarence L. Kincaid, Hollywood and Phil Dodson, South Pasadena, former state commanders of the Legion and the delegates at large will be Dewey S. Baker, Sacramento; Dr. A. D. Houghton, San Fernando and Joe M. Hume, Monrovia. Former National Commander John R. Quinn will also be in attendance from this state. Phil C. Katz of San Francisco, Congressional Medal of Honor man, has been invited with other wearers of that decoration, to be among the guests at the convention.

Berlin Election Riot

A SCENE in one of the street of the German capital as mounted police dispersed gatherings of agitators during the recent elections. The elections were indication of the changing feeling in Germany, with the Fascist element gaining power in the Reichstag.

SIGNALS WILL BE OBJECT OF DRIVE

Familiarity with the "Stop" and "Go" signals regulating traffic at busy intersections has caused a certain proportion of motorists to become lax in observing the devices or to wilfully disregard them according to the California committee on public safety. As a result, the committee announces that careful obedience to such signals has been selected as the subject of its October safety campaign.

The committee will devote its efforts during the month to educating motorists regarding the importance of closely obeying the signals and impressing them with the fact that such means of control are for their benefit.

Accompanied by a state-wide hereaftering of the phrase, "Traffic signals are for protection," the committee will direct an intensive effort toward stricter observance of the signals. The slogan will be broadcast by radio, displayed on moving picture screens and street car posters, and emphasized through the press, service clubs and other mediums.

Observations made in preparation for the campaign were declared to indicate that ignoring the signals or failure to comply with the result of inattention on the part of the motorist, although a certain amount of deliberate violation occurs.

The legal department of the California State Automobile association, which is assisting in making the campaign effective, points out that a motorist driving through an open intersection has a right under the law to assume that traffic approaching the crossing will observe the "Stop" signal. Attention is also called to the fact that the California Vehicle Act confers powers upon local authorities to employ automatic signals and enforce observance.

For the first ten days of the month the campaign will be directed mainly to the education features of the campaign and thereafter state traffic officers and city police departments will begin a period of strict enforcement of the laws requiring obedience to the "Stop" and "Go" signals.

Drivers Write Letters To Ease Their Conscience

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 30.—"Conscience letters," written by motorists who unintentionally damage the cars of others form an unique file of correspondence in the office of the California Highway patrol.

Most of these letters come from conscience-stricken drivers who crashed with another car at some time and want to pay the damages. One southern California man writes that he bumped another car in traffic and found his bumper bent when he arrived home. He wants to find the man whose car he hit and pay the bill.

Others tell of backing into parked vehicles and of hasty departures without taking down the number of the damaged car. They usually know only the location and time and essential information is missing.

Fear of being classified as a "hit and run" driver prompt many to write in for information as to the owners of cars so damaged. In this connection, Frank G. Snook, chief of the division of motor vehicles, calls attention to a new section of the law requiring motorists to leave a card showing their names and addresses when they strike unattended vehicles. In addition, they must notify the police of the incident.

The law was designed to give the absent owner some chance to negotiate with the person striking his car for settlement of the damage.

PREVENTION OF FIRES IS STRESSED

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—UP—Fifty-ninth anniversary of the Chicago fire, started by Mrs. O'Leary's cow, will be observed in the celebration of National Fire Prevention week, October 5 to 11, according to a bulletin issued here by the American Research Foundation.

"On October 9, 1871, Mrs. O'Leary's cow kicked over a lantern in a barn where it was being milked and started the great Chicago fire," says the bulletin. "In that conflagration, the worst of its kind in history, 17,500 buildings were destroyed, several hundred lives lost and a property loss of $168,000,000 was suffered."

"Mrs. O'Leary's cow has now become a symbol in fire prevention week for the everyday carelessness which must be curbed if America's appalling fire waste is to be reduced."

"Fire Prevention Week will be observed this year in every city and community in the United States. Civic committees, schools, churches, fraternal bodies, and business organizations will unite in spreading the message of fire prevention and in urging precautions and care against the hazards of fire."

"Study of the physical factors that cause and spread fires is contribution to the control of fire losses. At the same time discoveries by science are aiding materially in the cause of fire prevention. One of the most important of these has been the development of a process for rendering wood flame proof and fire resistant. This new process, perfected in the Henry Klein research laboratory, New York, which does not impair the wood's natural characteristics and decorative possibilities, makes it thoroughly resistant to fire, smoke and poison gases. Experts believe it will be an important agent in reducing the nation's future fire toll."

Elimination of carelessness, the bulletin concludes, is one of the most effective factors in fire prevention. Carelessness in handling matches, lighted cigars and cigarettes causes an annual loss of about $35,000,000 a year. Lack of care in handling electrical appliances results in a fire loss of $18,500,000 yearly.

APE BOY SENT TO DEATH CELL

st him. The condemned youth had aroused residents of California more than any other person charged with a crime in recent years, with the exception of William Edward Hickman.

Was Questioned
For three quarters of an hour before he started the walk to the old red brick building in which the execution chamber is located, Northcott was questioned about one of the boys he had been accused of killing, Walter Collins, 11, by the youth's mother Mrs. Christine Collins.

"Honestly, Mrs. Collins," Northcott concluded, "I'm ready to die and I don't know anything about your boy."

Then Northcott was granted a few minutes alone with his mother and father, Cyrus Northcott, the final meeting of the three being cut short by the hysterical weeping of Mrs. Northcott.

Very Cheerful
As he started up the three flights of stairs to the "death chamber," Northcott waved toward the sky and appeared to be in cheerful spirits.

During the afternoon Warden James B. Holohan had received a telegram from Nelson H. Winslow of Pomona, whose two sons mysteriously disappeared and were added to the list of Northcott's supposed victims, advising him that Mrs. Winslow was leaving for here in the hope that she might draw from Northcott a complete account of what happened to her boys.

When Northcott had said his last farewell, Holohan answered Winslow as follows:

"Restrain Mrs. Winslow if possible. I have just spent an hour with Northcott. Results absolutely unsatisfactory. My opinion you will not get anything worth while by talking to him."

Should Mrs. Winslow reach San Quentin she could not see Northcott now, since visitors are not allowed in the "death chamber."

Northcott told Mrs. Collins at least three totally different stories. First he denied ever having seen her boy around his ranch, then he told her Walter had been on his ranch, and finally he denied ever having seen the boy any place. While he was telling the mother of Walter's "visits" to his ranch, Northcott failed to describe correctly any piece of wearing apparel the boy had. He once said two boys had been killed on his ranch, but neither was Walter.

Mrs. Collins was crying when she left the room.

Boy Alive
"I believe my boy is still alive," she said.

For a short time Mrs. Northcott was permitted to participate in the conversation between Northcott and Mrs. Collins.

Northcott brought the meeting to a climax when she jumped up, raised her right hand, and almost screamed:

"I swear to God I never killed your boy. No one was killed on the ranch by Gordon or myself."

Denied Charge
Northcott then said, according to Warden Holohan, that he believed Sanford Clark, a youth who was star witness against him, had killed Walter Collins but he immediately denied this.

When he had said good bye to his son, Cyrus Northcott said he had absolute faith in his son's innocence and that he hoped for something to happen that would prevent the hanging, although he admitted the chances were small since Governor C. C. Young had declined to intervene.

"I believe in Gordon," he said. "He is in a cheerful state of mind, because he does not think he is going to hang Thursday. He is sure a last minute reprieve will arrive."

"But I have no intention of going to Sacramento to see Governor Young again. It seems to me that it would be a wild goose chase."

Fernly, prison guards, have been assigned to keep watch over Northcott until he starts the march up the 13 steps to the gallows. He may also see Larry Newgent, his spiritual adviser.

CHINA HIT BY NEW CIVIL WAR

PEIPING, Sept. 30.—UP—War broke out again in north-central China following Gen. Yen Hsi-Shan's declaration that he intended to set up an independent government at Taiyuan-Fu, in Shan's province, west of Peiping.

General Yen, governor of Shan's, the "model province," who fled from Peiping a few days ago in front of advancing troops from Manchuria, said in an interview at Taiyuan-Fu, capital of Shan's, that efforts to compromise with Nanking had failed.

He indicated in the interview at Taiyuan-Fu today that he would proceed with his plans as originally mapped out in Peiping, but with the scene shifted to Taiyuan-Fu. He said Wang Ching-Wei and other civilian associates would cooperate in giving northern China a peaceful, sound government.

Wang Ching-Wei, a dynamic revolutionary, has been in the Nationalist revolution since its inception, but broke with Chiang Kai-Shek in 1927 and joined the Moscow-controlled revolutionary government at Hankow.

He was one of the late Dr. Sun Yat-Sen's closest associates in the Kuomintang, or People's party, which Dr. Sun, "father of the Republic," founded.

Yen said he had ordered troops to proceed south into Honan province, to reinforce Marshal Feng and repel the attack of Nanking's forces in that sector. He declared Feng had withheld Chiang Kai-Shek's attacks but that in view of the changed situation—peace had been expected—he would join in a counter-attack on the government forces.

The Nanking offensive was reported moving northward in Honan, along the railway, and heavy fighting was anticipated.
